

A Day at the Fair, First Two Moons

We sat on a swingset side by side
Suspended from this rusted frame like puppets
The beach light flickered out and died
You stared at your feet as I looked at you and smiled

We saw the first two moons that night
One in the water and one up in the sky

And I live for nights I'm staring at the stars
Wearing words upon my heart for you to read it
And I think no matter how far away we are
The nights you look inside your heart
And you'll remember
Remember me

We saw a shooting star that night
You quietly asked me what I had wished for
I wanted times I won't forget
With hopes and hearts and lucky cigarettes

I got my wish
Cause I'm still staring at the stars
Wearing words upon my heart for you to read it
And I think no matter how far away we are
The nights you look inside your heart
And you'll remember
Remember me

And I still keep waking up
You were the best dream that I ever had
While standing up against this window pane
I look at you and I know that I'm lit

Cause I'm still staring at the stars
Wearing words upon my heart for you to read it
And I think no matter how far away we are
The nights you look inside your heart
And you'll remember
Remember me

Cause I'm still staring at the stars
Wearing words upon my heart for you to read it
And I think no matter how far away we are
The nights you look inside your heart
And you'll remember
Remember me
