

Agent Felix, Behind Me and if I stare too long at the sky tonight will it open up to breath life back into my lungs they're collapsing into me the time is right is never true you can't hold out on time it holds out on you even when you know your moment is now so turn your backs

away away from what your too afraid to try don't hold me back when I decide its my turn to fly its all for not but all could be for everything I'll make sure that the door will close behind me the distant rise is suddenly not looking all that seem to far I'm all stretched out out from always reaching for the stars just one wish and I will be there too reaching down for someone just like you what could have should have happened its so unfair for you for me it I know its different I won't give up this soon at least not this time sitting staring at the rain now the play is dead pull out the chains and measure out just how far that you've come