

Albert Hammond, These Are The Good Old Days

These are the good old days

And all the sad young men,
The rading (?) through there lifes
The girls that they have loved have now become expensive wives.
They think they know it all,
And in some ways they do
They reaching out for better times,
If they only knew

These are the good old days
This is the best time of my life
The best Ive ever known
And it wont ever the same again
These are the good old days
(And when I close around the)?
and life is slowing down
I know what I have done

And all the sad young men
Go marching of to war
The old men shake their heads and say
Weve seen it all before
The lesson takes so long
And by the time we found the answer, live is almost done.

These are the good old days
This is the best time of my life
The best Ive ever known
And it wont ever be the same again
And life is slowing down
I know what I have done.

(As far as I understand...
Maybe someone knows the breaks?)
