

Alchemist, Found

I once had a vivid dream,
Where all was so clear yet unseen.

And boundary less I could go,
My physical form did not show,
And looking down from below,
At the people who gathered and cried,
Came the realization that my body had died.