

Alexz Johnson, Where Does It Hurt

Where does it hurt?
Tell me cause I understand
The words of a heart
Beating like wings in my head
We can't hide
We'll never lie
I'll always see into you

There's nothing wrong
With coming up empty and cold
Staying too long
And trying to turn rocks into gold
I've been there too
I've wasted myself
And you were there for me

So whenever you crash
Wherever you land
That's where I'll be

And for every endless midnight
There's a sky full of broken stars
But there'll always be a place for you
Inside my arms
Where does it hurt?

When you open your heart
There's always so much to lose
So far to fall
And nowhere to go when it's through
But if you let me in
I won't let you down
Put your faith in me
Cause whenever you crash
Wherever you land
That's where I'll be

And for every endless midnight
There's a sky full of broken stars
And there'll always be a place for you
Inside my arms

And there's a million streets to walk down
In this city of broken hearts
But there'll always be a place for you
Inside my arms

Where does it hurt?
Where does it hurt?

And for ever endless midnight
There's a sky full of broken stars
And there'll always be a place for you
Inside my arms

And there's a million streets to walk down
In this city of broken hearts
But there'll always be a place for you
Inside my arms

Where does it hurt?
Oooh where does it hurt?
Where does it hurt?
