

All About Eve, Elizabeth Of Glass

&quot;all passive obedience and implicit submission of will is far too easy,
Chop off your legs, you will never go astray&quot;

Stifle your reason altogether and you will find it is difficult to reason end.&quot;

&quot;the misery, you see what we have gained by waiting.&quot;

&quot;death, dearest, I shall not fail you.&quot;

&quot;elizabeth herself who had to decide.&quot;

&quot;elizabeth of glass, with the white horses galloping in the moonlight
And the stars glittering overhead.&quot;

&quot;robert suddenly said in the midst of our talking and laughing.&quot;

&quot;i loved and raised the boy... he cannot be happy, I think,
In the depths of his heart.&quot;

&quot;and every night he was allowed by my bedside, and with such tenderness,
Such goodness....&quot;
