Alphaville, Romeos

There's a boy with a little black dog There's a boy with a little black dog And he looks at his watch for a while And the falling years wash away his make up And the falling years wash away his make up Just like rain on the fading snow

He's a lonesome streetside Romeo You can see him from your window tonite This world's a divided place you know He's awaiting you

All the boys are locked in a fortress All the girls are locked in a fortress Just because it's a crime it could be It could be Flesh and blood in iron and steel Flesh and blood in iron and steel Just because it's a crime it could be It could be

We're all lonesome streetside Romeos You can see us from your window tonite This world's a divided place you know We're awaiting you

We're all lonesome streetside Romeos This world's a divided place you know We're awaiting you, we're awaiting you We all change our points of view, sometimes You can see us from your window, tonite

We're awaiting you Awaiting you
