Amigo the Devil, The Mechanic

I promise, I promise I'll fix what you need Just give me some time and you'll see

I know it's been years since the first time you heard this

But this time I promise it's real

Like a dog that keeps whining but you love how it sounds so you let it go hungry to hear it Your shirts are all stained with the blood dripping out

And the problem gets harder to hide

Did we only let go to know we'd have something to find?

Darling, Darling, we've always been much more than this.

I knew you weren't broken

I just néeded something to fix

I'm sorry I'm sorry I know what I said

Now I have to live with it too

I had no idea what the words really meant

Until the day I said them to you

Hard times were never bad times

I know we're trying to find that again

Maybe where we're headed, doesn't include where we've been.

Like a house that's on fire but you love how it feels so you throw in the memories to feed it.

The more we let go, the harder it is to leave.

Darling, are we saying this is finally done

I used to be happy, now used to be is all I've become

We used to be happy, now used to be is all we've become.
