Anna Ternheim, Summer Rain

Last summer was mad remember the rain I know people complained

I had something else in mind

Not the sound of rain against my window pane

All I could hear was you

Hammering in my héad

Fall like a wave

Against a rock

Leave with a rush

Or get crushed

You never know

Until after the shock

When you wake up

Whats broken whats not

One day I dont know how

My whole life evolved

Around you my Lord

Believing was not enough

You said I was a hole of desperate need

And no love in the world

Not even yours

Could satisfy me

Thats when the troubles began

Disasters came

One by one I nearly drowned

In that Summer rain

Fall like a wave

Against a rock

Leave with a rush

Or get crushed

You never know

Until after the shock

When you wake up

Whats broken whats not

We fall like waves

Against the rock

Leave with a rush or get crushed

You never know

Until after the shock

When you wake up

Whats broken whats not

When you wake up

Whats broken whats not
