Anne Murray, I Really Don't Want to Know

How many arms have held you And hated to let you go How many, how many, I wonder But I really don't want know And how many lips have kissed you And set your soul aglow How many, how many, I wonder But I really don't want to know So always make me wonder Always make me guess And even if I ask you Darling, don't confess Just let it remain your secret For darling, I love you so No wonder, no wonder, I wonder But I really don't want to know So always make me wonder Always make me guess Even if I ask you Darling, don't confess Just let it remain your secret For darling, I love you so No wonder, no wonder, I wonder But I really don't want to know
