Apraxia, Vampires' Castle

There exists the legend from long ago That during fullmoon time The count of vampires rises again In the dark forlorn castle. And awoken by the moonlight He calls up vampires with Wolve howling To a new blood celebration, From the vault, where he's been esting for years. On hearing this call, his servants Hurry into the castle. And to have a feast they Carry live people. And pour blood in the cups, It flares up like a flame... I would like to have a drink Of human blood at this ball...