

Averi, Tendencies Of A Hypochondriac

There is something that I'm afraid of here.
And despite my efforts, she says that it's me.
It falls away, this sense of gain
and I'm left here living De Ja Vu
so open me up and tear this out
I'd like to stay here with you.

But doesn't this feel too comfortable?
Don't you feel too comfortable?

Isn't it just like me,
to lay here in this dream
and then throw it all away
because there is something wrong again.

It feels too perfect here tonight,
so does that mean that there is something wrong with us?
It finds a way to slap my face
and the burn leaves me living De Ja Vu Sure enough, I'll fuck this up and leave here empty without you.

Isn't it just like me,
to lay here in this dream
and then throw it all away
because there is something wrong again.

All I did was wake up and everything had changed
do you think we could fall apart and start again?
Despite all my efforts she still says that it's me
and if I could answer I think that I'd agree.

Doesn't this feel too comfortable?