Bee Gees, My Life Has Been A Song

Sweet simple song of diff'rent lights and diff'rent shades The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along My life has been a song

Here as I sleep, the love I dream will gently creep Inside my heart I softly keep the tune that plays too long My life has been a song

Ev'ry sound in my head, ev'ry word that I said is like a melody melody That no little person like me could ever change Ev'ry sound in the street, all the cold and the heat is like a symphony symphony Which has never before been rearranged

Sweet simple song of diff'rent lights and diff'rent shades The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along My life has been a song

Ev'ry sound in my head, ev'ry word that I said is like a melody melody That no little person like me could ever change Ev'ry sound in the street, all the cold and the heat is like a symphony symphony Which has never before been rearranged

Sweet simple song of diff'rent lights and diff'rent shades The sound of life erupts and fades and all the world must play along My life has been a song

Ev'ry sound in my head, ev'ry word that I said is like a melody melody That no little person like me could ever change Ev'ry sound in the street, all the cold and the heat is like a symphony symphony Which has never before been rearranged