Beloved, Watching The Lines Blur

Closer away from the boundaries I'm building to break from Boundless and unrestrained Building to break them all We are built to see one way But watching the lines blur Our eyes have been gorged out And fused to see another I won't let this tear me out of the ground I will defy the culture that rips me out And tears me down I will defy your culture and make this real We will not die just to fade Into the air like memories We will not die If we live in hearts we leave behind Then we will never die And you can't replace them With the ones you've lost We're escaping all of your securities