

Birdy, Older

I wish that I was older,
Old enough to be yours, mmmm
And I wish that I was wiser,
Wise enough to be strong-minded,
To keep up with the words you say
That make me feel so young

But I don't know where this is going,
I've just been hoping
And I can see by your smile
That you're glowing inside and out
Let's not pretend like it's not what it is,
When I'm just starting to realize
That I love you, ooh

And I wish that we were strangers,
Strange enough to go unnoticed from this crowd
And I wish that we were closer,
Close enough for me to hold you
When your lonely nights become too long to bear

But I don't know where this is going,
I've just been hoping
And I can see by your smile
That you're glowing inside and out
Let's not pretend like it's not what it is,
When I'm just starting to realize
That I love you, ooh

You hold your head up high,
Though it's hard to, ooh
I can't keep back,
I know I just want you, ooh

But I don't know where this is going,
I've just been hoping
And I can see by your smile
That you're glowing inside and out
Let's not pretend like it's not what it is,
When I'm just starting to realize
That I love you, ooh

I love you