

Brian May & Kerry Ellis, The Kissing Me Song

It was a stone cold night
And when the snow flakes fell
We had to hold on tight
Before our last farewell

Then the darkness took you from me
As you walked into the night
You said you'd never change
You'd never change your mind

And then I looked away
And I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
I could see you
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
I could see you
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me

It was a lonely night
When I was watching the TV
They made me hold on tight
There you were singing about me

It was a lonely summer freedom
How you had to fly away
You said you'd never change
You'd never change your mind

And then I closed my eyes
And I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
(Kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me)
Oooh
Wooh
Ohh yeah

I could see you
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
I could see you (I could see you)
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me

Brian: One, two, three, four

I could see you (I could see you)
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
I could see you (I could see you)
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
I could see you (I could see you)
I could see you
I could see you kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me, kissing me
