

Carolina Liar, Better Alone

Don't you hope
We can start again
Endings are old
But they help you see
Can't quite believe
All of this and what it means
You've become so bitter
You think you're better alone
For the sake of your sanity
It won't resolve
If you just learn to breathe, again
You never had the nerve to begin with
You think you're better alone
Been here before
Seeking safety or something to blame
You feel so hollow
You could swear that you've grown
Where did you think
As big as your dream
You've become so bitter
You think you're better alone
For the sake of your sanity
It won't resolve
If you just learn to breathe, again
You never had the nerve to begin with
You think you're better alone
Never had the nerve to begin with
Got to come to your senses
You think you're better alone
For the sake of your sanity
It won't resolve
If you just learn to breathe, again
You think you're better alone
It won't resolve..