Since I Don't See You Anymore

The gas-lamp flickers in the night

And jingle-jangles in the wind

The pool-hall cowboys play and play

'cos pool-hall hot shots don't go home

And a lonely breeze sends shivers

From a distant shore

Since i don't see you anymore

The morning curtains gently sway

A gap throws light across the room

You curse that noisy radio

Even when you turn it down

It tells us bad news of a distant war

And i don't see you anymore

Since i didn't see you

Since i didn't see you

Since i don't see you anymore

No me da un bleo si senor

Since i don't see you anymore

I've always got time for one more

Since i don't see you anymore

And a lonely breeze sends shivers

From a distant shore

And the tears fall faster now love

Much more than before

Since i don't see you anymore

Sing a song of love to me

Sing a song of love to me

As the shadows start to grow

And i won't be sad and lonely

Anymore

'cos if you sing a song of love to me

I will always find a smile

That will warm my cold, cold heart

Just for a while

Songs of love i know so well

Yea, i've seen some days and had some times

Lucky boy i can hear you say

You think my sun does nothing but shine
