

Clifford T. Ward, I Don't Understand Your Logic

I don't understand your logic
You say you want me to protect you from now on
But I don't understand your logic
You say it's sad to see your independence gone
Will it all go on?

It might be nice if we occasionally agree
It might entice another part of you and me
Well it's hard for you and me
Difficult to see.

But I don't understand your logic
You say you're leavin' then you change your mind again
But I don't understand your logic
You say I'm cruel an' I don't love your innocence
You really don't make sense.

It might be nice if we occasionally agree
It might entice another part of you and me
Well it's hard for you and me
Difficult to see.

But I don't understand your logic
You're the girl who leaves me wonderin' who I am
An' I don't understand your logic
You keep me on my toes never sure of where I am
Or if I really can.

I don't understand your logic
It's tantamount to things I dream about in you
An' I don't understand your logic
It all amounts to everything I love in you
I don't understand your logic.
(and fade).
