Dallas Green, Sometimes (I Wish)

If I was a simple man,
Would we still walk hand in hand?
And if I suddenly went blind,
Would you still look in my eyes?
What happens when I grow old?
And all my stories have been told?
Will your heart still race for me?
Or will it march to a new beat?
If I was a simple man

If I was a simple man, I'd own no home, I'd own no land Would you still stand by my side? And would our flame still burn so bright?

Sometimes I wonder why, I'm so full of these endless rhymes About the way I feel inside I wish I could just get it right

If I was a simple man And I could make you understand There'd be no reason to think twice You'd be my sun; you'd be my light If I was a simple man If I was a simple man

Sometimes I wonder why I'm so full of these endless rhymes About the way I feel inside I wish Sometimes (x 12)
