

daymond, save my mind

Make sure that the door is locked
I don't wanna let them know
They've been here many times before
Tears are scattered on the floor
I just wanna hear goodnight
Not because it makes things right
I've been proven one too many times
Losing sight won't save my mind

Falling on my knees
In honor of my fears
They know the way you breathe
And come in once you leave

Millions of eyes are watching me
What is there to see?
Never knew attention could be a problem
But there are too many of them
And I don't know how to stop them
Please, tell me how to stop them
I'm never gonna stop them

Always took me by surprise
Even though it happened more
Than once or twice
And so every time I apologized
In hopes they'll be willing to compromise
But nothing I do
And nothing I say
Seems to be affecting them anyway
I guess I caught up with time
I guess I have to pay up for my crimes

Somebody dies
Nobody cries
Live in the present
Forget the past
Try to move on Leave him alone
That's not your business
Don't answer the phone

Falling on my knees
In honor of my fears
They know the way you breathe
And come in once you leave

Millions of eyes are watching me
What is there to see?
Never knew attention could be a problem
But there are too many of them
And I don't know how to stop them
Please, tell me how to stop them
I'm never gonna stop them
