Deep Blue Something, Enough To Get By listening, listening and every hand is framed that gang of hours still call themselves a day. call it shades and subtleties, enraged, grey generalities, whatever 'cause I'll still call it plain

I'd like to get enough to get by string along and wave goodbye a train will lull any soul to sleep. you'll wake to find you're still alone with every lie you know. come with me and waste another hour.
