Dolly Parton, You

The morning sun comes quietly into my room each morning It wakes me up to greet a brand new day I arise a thinking that it's so good to be living Loving you is why I feel this way

You my love it's you that makes me always feel like singing And every song I sing I sing for you You and only you can make the sun shine when it's raining All my happiness I owe to you You all my happiness I owe to you

The garden of Eden couldn't have been any sweeter Than this paradise I share with you Our love outshines the eastern star the brightest in the heavens Surely heaven must have sent me you

You my love it's you that makes me always feel like singing... You you make me complete and I love you