Dreadful Shadows, Dusk (Version)

The leaves are drifting with the sunlight Far away from here, like a ship into the void The birds lapse into their last song The final sounds die And only dust remains on earth

No river will flow, no fire will burn - anymore The wind has lost its power Another piece of the universe is gone Grey stones bury your will to live

Dusk

But now I stand here with my arms outstretched Breathing clearest air I've found everything I've lost before And when I fall I fly in endless circles Noone catches me, noone stops me anymore

Now the grey days are gone And it's time to rest, to find myself I was always searching for this It's a kind of death, but you're not dead Dusk

But now I stand here with my arms outstretched Breathing clearest air I've found everything I've lost before And when I fall I fly in endless circles Noone catches me, noone stops me anymore

Dusk

But now I stand here with my arms outstretched Breathing clearest air I've found everything I've lost before And when I fall I fly in endless circles Noone catches me, noone stops me anymore
