Dream Theater, Losing Time / Grand Finale

She dresses in black everyday She keeps her hair simple and plain She never wears makeup But no one would care if she did anyway

She doesn't recall yesterday Faces seem twisted and strange But she always wakes up Only to find she'd been miles away

Absence of awareness Losing time A lapse of perception Losing time

Wanting to escape She had created a way to survive She learned to detach from herself A behavior that kept her alive

Hope in the face of our human distress Helps us to understand the turbulence deep inside That takes hold of our lives Shame and disgrace over mental unrest Keeps us from saving those we love The grace within our hearts And the sorrow in our souls Deception of fame Vengeance of war Lives torn apart Losing oneself Spiraling down Feeling the walls closing in A journey to find The answers inside Our illusive mind