Duff McKagan, I Love You

It's been four months since You gone away My bed is empty and my heart Still feels the pain yeah the pain I see your picture in a magazine I look away still see you starin' at me At me Chorus I walk the streets at night And there's no one else in my sight but you In my mind Cause I still love you Yeah I still love you Buy a ticket to a subway train A one-way token just to end my pain From you yeah from you Ticket says destination unknown The car stops and I'm back at home all alone Without you without you Chorus I walk the streets at night And there's no one else in my sight but you In my mind Cause I still love you Yeah I still love you I saw you at a restaurant down on 42nd Street Drinkin' red wine and laughin' I kept walkin' by myself with a bottle of rve I don't need you baby And you're foolin' yourself when you say You don't need me I said you're foolin' yourself When you say you don't need me And I'm lyin' fallin' down in the alley Yeah I'm lyin' to myself as I'm screamin' Chorus I saw some chick the other day She had a smile that looked so cool It looked like you so I walked away My eyes are tired but I still look cool My tears are past And I don't need you, don't need you, need you "If you thought I needed you why would I be lookin' at chicks and lookin' at French fashion magazines"
