

Echsmith, Lonely Generation

lonely generation
we're the lonely generation
a pixelated versions of ourselves
empty conversation
I've disconnected
now I am by myself
here we are left behind
looking through a screen makes you feel alright another day
another dime looking on the wrong place for something night looking on the wrong place for something right
looking on the wrong place for something right

we're the lonely generation
a pixelated versions of ourselves
empty conversation
I've disconnected
now I am by myself
in the dark
whit open eyes

drinking form a broken glass don't realize
can't feel the pain
can't feel a thing
wasting time and stuck inside a broken dream
wasting time and stuck inside a broken dream
wasting time and stuck inside a broken dream

we're the lonely generation
a pixelated versions of ourselves
empty conversation
I've disconnected
now I am by myself

is just a real dream?
are we living in the in-between
is just a real dream?
are we living in the in-between

we're the lonely generation
a pixelated versions of ourselves
empty conversation
I've disconnected
now I am by myself