

Emmy Rossum, Lullaby

Laying alone with the history that made you
Cold and uncertain inside
Well careful now, deep breath
The water's still rising
But your silver lining's in sight

When you feel like you're breaking down
And your body's just giving in
And you can't go on broken like this
Any longer

Close your eyes
Don't you cry
Let the sorrow within you subside
Don't despair
Have no fear
Give your weight to me when you hear
This lullaby

You say all seems so wrong with the life that you're living
You're searching for some reason why
You're so scared to trust
You're feeling unworthy
Aching for comfort tonight

When your heart's too sore to beat
And you fear it might never heal
And you feel not even beggars want you
I do

Close your eyes
Don't you cry
Let the sorrow within you subside
Don't despair
Have no fear
Give your weight to me when you hear
This lullaby

Close your eyes
Don't you cry

Close your eyes
Don't you cry
Let the sorrow within you subside
Don't despair
Have no fear
Give your way to me when you hear
This lullaby

Don't you cry
Let the darkness within you feel light
Don't despair
Have no fear
You'll find comfort in me like a child
With this lullaby

This lullaby

Don't you cry

This lullaby

Close your eyes
