

Ephyra, ...to the Realm

From the remote lands beyond the ancient sea our invincible army returns!!
Victory riding its black sails!
Light of glory shines on our King!
He comes back with a crown of bones, master of more lands than when he left And soldiers are shouting his name!

Many awful screaming orcs killed with our swords their mighty shields can't stop our rage

Prayers to their hollow gods and very useless cries gave them only empty hopes and cruel dies!

Shipload full of gold and jewels Heroes come again
It's time to celebrate
Them, screaming our name Ephyra!

Wine and beer grateful dance around the flame women, this is time to undress, this is our aim!

Victory and Majesty!
Honor and steel!
Every single fighter
Today is a king!

For us fallen in battle Walhalla doors are wide
But for the survivors
The woman's legs are outright!

Sitting on the black throne
With twenty concubines Leaning on his sword
Here he is the mighty king

He grabs seven women and proves us that In any type of combat he does not ever pulling back!

While the sunset marks
The end of the feast
And everyone returns home
Drunk and satisfied
King is awake in the war room, he can't sleep
Looking for his possessions
On the ancient map
He's already thinking about
The next one to attack
"What will be the next kingdom To fall under my steel?"
No rest for the conquerors War is in the blood!
Only the dead and weak can bored in peace!
