

Fabrizio Faniello, When We Danced

I can see your face,
In the morning sun,
Feel your body within my soul.
Oh you gave me life but you took my heart,
Now only your love can make me whole.
It was a night filled with music with passion romance,
And my heart never had a chance.

RIT: When we danced under the summer sky,
Just two strangers in the pale moonlight,
We were one for a moment in time,
And it felt like you had always been mine.
When we danced.

I can hear your voice in the pouring rain,
Beating gentle against my heart,
And I tell my self not to think of you,
There'll be no end if ever start.
But I feel my will start to wash away,
Carrying me back to that night.

RIT: when we danced under the summer sky,
Just two strangers in the pale moonlight,
We were one for a moment in time,
And it felt like you had always been mine.
When we danced.

Will I ever feel you in my arms again,
I'll give my life to be with you for one more dance,
I remember, do you remember?

RIT: when we danced under the summer sky,
Just two strangers in the pale moonlight,
We were one for a moment in time,
And it felt like you had always been mine.
When we danced.
