Flying Postmen, Simply Enough

(Nicula/Bojescu)

You stand at the gates my love Wond'ring to come in or not You may come inside To switch on the light You will see me there Sitting on a chair

Night arrives and kills the day I hope you won't turn away Would you come inside To switch off the night You will see me there again

And I'll tell you darling how much I would give To get high when your charming smile lands on my lips That's when I begin to feel you love Simply enough

You stand at the door my dear You still there and I'm still here Would you come inside You don't have to hide You will see I'm home alone

And I'll tell you darling how much I would give
To get high when your charming smile lands on my lips
That's when I begin to feel you love
Simply enough, simply enough
Simply enough, simply enough
