

Greenwheel, Dim Halo

Imagine no daylight only the moon as your guide
When ours is to darkness what forgotten sun is too bright Eyes wide open now taking it all in stride

I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
Like a crown the moon wears a dim halo

And to all my regret I fair thee well
You came around to slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off the walls
I see nothing left to break my fall
Break my fall

To bear the slings and arrows, my chances narrow
Just roll with the punches now, bruises can heal
Soften the blow cause I don't want to feel anymore
Just cancel out this fear

I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
Like a crown the moon wears a dim halo

And to all my regret I fair thee well
You came around to slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo off the walls
Break my fall

I can see your eyes when the stars hang low
Like a crown the moon wears a dim halo
And to all my regret I fair you well
You came around to slowly as I fell

My screams can only echo off the walls
I see nothing left

And to all my regret I fair thee well
You came around to slowly as I fell
My screams can only echo, off echo off the wall
my screams can only echo, off echo off the wall
