Hootie And The Blowfish, Only Lonely

Hello again Your words they make me smile As I drift away In my little room upstairs

Oh I spend my nights Imagining your face your touch Then I realize How I don't even know your name

If we could share our time Would I disappoint your fantasies I believe that you could be the one I'm needing 'cause I'm only lonely on the inside didn't mean to take away your dreams only lonely on the inside when you close your eyes to your deepest thoughts

I could start to give apologies For all the stupid things That I will say and I will do If we should ever cross the same place at the same time Would your world skip a beat 'cause it was me

If we could share our life Would I disappoint your memories I believe that I could be the one your needing And I'm

[CHORUS]

If I could give back your hopes your joys your treasures Don't you think that I would change my world But there's so many things trying to pull us together Even though we're far apart I can still watch you walk away

(in your deepest thoughts do you see me) (when you close your eyes, in your deepest thoughts do you see me)
