

Hypo Psycho, Stereotypical

So you're 16 years old and school's took your spirit and crushed every dream that you've ever known
Go to university, settle down with a nice girl get a 2.4 family
Do you know that you were living someone else's dream
Today's the day you stop being a puppet on a string

CHORUS:

I bet you hate your dead end job
Trying to force you to be something that you're not
Are you sick of all that psychobabble cynical
It's unoriginal, don't be so stereotypical

Work your butt to save for package holiday in someone else's hell hole
Complain about the food, be rude cus no-one speaks the language you know
When was the last time you had a thought that was your own
You're gonna work for 40 years so you can own your home

CHORUS:

I bet you hate your dead end job
Trying to force you to be something that you're not
Are you sick of all that psychobabble cynical
It's unoriginal, don't be so stereotypical

Are you happy to be force-fed reality TV
Why don't you go and join the army
And be all you can be 1, 2, 3,

I'm tired of hearing all your feeble excuses
From shoulda woulda coulda all time losers

CHORUS

I bet you hate your dead end job
Trying to force you to be something that you're not
Are you sick of all that psychobabble cynical
It's unoriginal, don't be so stereotypical

I bet you hate your dead end job
Trying to force you to be something that you're not
Are you sick of all that psychobabble cynical

Ain't it difficult to jump off the treadmill
Don't be a slave to money, it's immaterial
That same old boring everyday 9-5 cycle

its unoriginal don't be so stereotypical
