

Jack Greene, If Not For You

If anything I am or hope to be if any compliments are paid to me
If any praises I receive for anything that I achieve
I know they rightfully belong to you
For when I wandered you convince me that I could Knowing you depended on me proved I should
And in your mind you never doubted that I would but what would I do if not for you

I see admiration in your eyes and I believe you think I'll hang the moon
And if I feel like other men I'll find the will and try again
But anything I am begins with you
For when I wandered...
What would I do if not for you
