

Jean Shepard, How In The World Will I Get Over

How in the world will I get over you when mem'ries of your love keep me so blue
And even knowing you don't care I can't stop loving you
How in the world will I get over you
How in the world will I get over you when I can't even look for someone new
And falling out of love it seems it's just too hard to do
How in the world will I get over you
How in the world will I forget your warm sweet lips
And the feel of your arms the way you held me tight
How in the world do I go about forgetting you
When I got you on my mind both day and night
How in the world will I get over you your love for me is gone I know we're through
But as long as my mind remember and my heart keeps staying true
How in the world will I get over you how in the world will I get over you
