Joe Wilson, Even The Flux Capacitor Can't Save

safe and, safe and sound your feet on the ground we only fight on holidays and anniversaries stood at the edge of the water tonight and i cursed your skyline, your skyline i think i can swim the hudson in record time i liked you better when you were you not who you are turning into tie a string around my finger to remind me to love you and when im a country away, ill be thinking of you and years from now when i'm sharing a bed with a body at least i'll pretend that it's you remember shy likeful girl naive to the world