

John Berry, Every Time My Heart Calls Your Name

(Gary Heyde/J.B. Rudd)

I thought that I could leave it all behind me
I thought that I could make a brand new start
If I had nothing to remind me it wouldn't be so hard
But the voices that says it ain't over yet
No matter what I do I just can't forget

Everytime my heart calls your name
Your memory draws me in
Just like a moth drawn to a flame
I'm back in your arms again
For awhile it feels like nothing's changed
Everytime my heart calls your name

Starting with the very first I love you, you were all I thought about
And I've been trying hard to let go of you since the moment you walked out
Maybe you would never cross my mind
If I could find a way to leave my heart behind

Everytime my heart calls your name
Your memory draws me in
Just like a moth drawn to a flame
I'm back in your arms again
For awhile it feels like nothing's changed
Everytime my heart calls your name

Everytime my heart calls your name
Your memory draws me in
Just like a moth drawn to a flame
I'm back in your arms again
For awhile it feels like nothing's changed
Everytime my heart calls your name

Everytime my heart calls your name