

Judy Garland, Oceans Apart

Oceans apart and with only the blue between Since we're apart
I'm yearning
I tell my heart
we must wait for another dawn when he may be returning

How I regret the night he sailed for another shore
Will he come into sight to leave my arms no more?
I'll kiss him again
He'll know right from the very start
that we were never meant to be oceans apart

Oceans apart and with only the blue between us
Since we're apart
I'm yearning
I'll kiss him again
He'll know right from the very start
that we were never meant to be oceans apart.
