Kamelot, Epilogue

One other year has left my life One year bygone so soon These were the days I sacrificed These days were lived for you

Some came with winter in white Some days were blown away Some came with sultry summer nights Some with October rain

Oh, how I long for utter silence But who am I to know When rain will turn to snow? If life brings another day