I can't defy this fate
My head jars in it's confusion

I can't resist against time and heaven
In blind obedience, both my hands
Tighten the thread
I open my eyes that have been sewn shut

Break down the invisible walls
Even with mechanical thoughts
Dreams are ruined
The reason you ruminate the shadowy past and the dreadful future
And the bound words of the present:
To know limits
Is to be inside a black birdcage

Even if this voice
Gets put out

Believing in things you cannot see
Even with my trembling arms
I want to protect someone dear to me
The place my thought that progressed up to now struggle on to
To see hopes
Even in a black, confined world

I open my watering

Bloodshot eyes
