

Kari Amirian, Anew

I stand still face lashed
by the rushing wind
Try to pray
but my voice evaporates
I just said the words
never to be said
Made my baby cry
I stand against the wall
Looking up for hope
Mercy comes again

Everytime we come tumbling down
It is funny how we take it
When we bring our weakness to the light
We rise again anew

Tell me please how far
Will I have to go
For the seed of love
To be finally sown
I've just done a thing
never to be done
Lead myself astray

Everytime we come tumbling down
It is funny how we take it
When we bring our weakness to the light
We rise again anew through
Everytime we come tumbling down
It is funny how we take it
When we bring our weakness to the light
We rise again anew

I stand still engrossed
In the morning wind
Pray to be renewed
A recycled fiend
I submit my soul
To the reign of God
In this quiet prayer
I know that you're here
I give my little heart
Come and take your place