Katie Melua, The Flood

Broken people get recycled and I hope that I will sometimes be thrown over pathways what I thought was my way home wasn't the place I know no I'm certain nothing's certain what we are becomes our prison my posessions will be gone back to where they came from flame noone is to blame as natural as the rain that falls here comes the Flood again

See the rock that you hold onto is it gonna save you? when the earth begins to crumble why do you feel you have to hold on? imagine if you let go flame noone is to blame as natural as the rain that falls here comes the Flood again

push away the weight that pulls you down Light the waves that free from the dark don't trust your eyes its easy to believe them know in your heart that you can leave your prison don't trust your mind it's not always listening turn on the lights and feel the ancient rhythm

don't trust your eyes its easy to believe them know in your heart that you can leave your prison

flame noone is to blame as natural as the rain that falls here comes the Flood again