

Kenny Price, Something To Believe In

She lays her head on my pillow every night she shares her dream the same dream as I
The two of us together loving and living she gives me something to believe in
She gives me something to believe in I devote to her all of my being
She is the reason life now has meaning she gives me something to believe in [steel]
I must have an angel sleeping here with me
Seems there's always a helper there when I'm in need
She's my whole future on her I can depend she gives me something to believe in
She gives me something to believe in...
She gives me something to believe