Kensington, What Lies Ahead

cold and broken downit's all i knew I let corner me in and hide where my tracks lead now I am waking up and all I do is getting lost in the past to find where I'd first hear that I was never gonna be somebody that I was never gonna feel light come around and they rise again as I am told that I should see

red now and to fear what lies ahead now but I know that I will do everthing for you again and I bet now you will see thet u will burn what u don't need here and I'll know it's alright /3x

how I faded out cause I never knew that all the thorn in my bed were passed down and taught me that I was never gonna be somebody that I was never gonna feel light come around and they rise again as I am told that I should see what if the years won't come it's caught up in my head what if I'll be outrun? ut haunts me down instead it has gone one way it was bound to break and it all reminds me od a time I fooled around but now I am fighting