

Lea Michele, Christmas in New York thanksgiving day's been put away and the final leaves have floated to the ground but landing on a bed of snow feels warm somehow we've said goodbye to all the friend and family we'll soon see again go to sleep and wake up to the brand new scene

then suddenly Rockefeller's covered in the lights families are playing on the ice from Harlem to the Battery every corner's bustling suddenly it's Christmas in New York

Briquettes are warming up their kicks Radio city sold out of all their tickets the window od Fifth Avenue are dressed up and they're telling you suddenly it's Christmas in New York

find me on Broadway or at the baller and I am 5 years old again making my whist list but all I wish is for another Christmas in New York oh Santa land is ready to debut when Macy;s is so packed you can't get through the kids are lined up everywhere spilling out into the square suddenly it's Christmas in New York
