

Leo Sayer, Young And In Love

it's a secret and he tells no one but his heart leaps like a beating drum that's how it feels when you're she's the reason he smiles all day like a bird sings in a gilded cage that's how it feels when you're young they promise to be faithful and true but young love needs no excuse like the future it never ends you four in the morning she creeps down the stairs runs to the rendezvous will he be there a hand on her shoulder in the moonlight there's a boy and girl they're the only people in the world that's how it feels when you're young but can't you just remember back in time when the whole world was yours and mine maybe a lifetime
