

Leverage, When We Were Young

There's a message in a bottle
Lying on the shore of seas of time
Signed and sealed by both of us together
When we were young

Each sunset brought a new horizon
Beyond the boundaries of all dreams
None of us were ordinary people
When we were young

Thousand roads to unknown destinations
Leaps of faith deciding which way to go
Didn't care about anyone's expectations
When we were young

All just flashes in the mirror
Now so much further than they seem
The lights were brighter, grass was greener
When we were young

On board the train that left the station
Why I had to leave I still don't know
I didn't have your faith,
I went for freedom
When we were young
