

Limp, Tin Foil

i know i really didn't mean to
to see through all the tears in your eyes i never meant to make you cry and wished that this had passed you by by now i'll hope that i seem to leave you
up and go away
its gone again
and where it went i'd give it all if i could know i'd know

i know its never
i know its never
i know its never been this hard for you
i know we've never
i know we've never
i know we've never gone this far its true
another moment
another word and
another look and we'll call it through for sure
this time its true

we lie we haven't decided its too hard to try anymore
no matter what is said or done we've let it go to come undone one word it seems so simple for us to our sense of your thought with best intentions
our worst reactions
they linger on and on too long i know

i know its never
i know its never
i know its never been this hard for you
i know we've never
i know we've never
i know we've never gone this far its true
another moment
another word and
another look and we'll call it through for sure
this time its true

i'll leave the light on
i'll leave it burning
i'll leave the light on
to heal the hurting
i'll leave the light on
i'll leave it burning
i'll leave the light on
for you

i know

i know its never
i know its never
i know its never been this hard for you
i know we've never
i know we've never
i know we've never gone this far its true
another moment

another word and
another look and we'll call it through for sure
this time its true

its true
its true
its true