

Linkin Park, Crawling (Demo)

I hate you so much right now

Crawling in my skin
These wounds, they will not heal
Fear is powerful
Confusing what is real, oh...

There's something inside me
That pulls beneath the surface
Consuming, confusing
This lack of self control
I've found so overwhelming
Controlling... I can't seem

To find my strength again
My walls are closing in
(Without a sense of competence, I'm convinced
That there's just too much pressure to take...)
I've felt this way before;
So insecure...

Crawling in my skin
These wounds, they will not heal
Fear is powerful
Confusing what is real, oh...

Discomfort endlessly
Laid itself upon me
Distracting, reacting
Against my will I stand
Beside my own reflection
It's haunting... how I can't seem...

To find my strength again
My walls are closing in
(Without a sense of competence, I'm convinced
That there's just too much pressure to take...)
I've felt this way before;
So insecure...

Raindrops put the rhythm of the pavement
And drip from the blacktop into the basement
Traces of the rain pervade this to erase your hate
And take this from the fakeness...

Raindrops put the rhythm of the pavement
And drip from the blacktop into the basement
Traces of the rain pervade this to erase your hate
And take this from the fakeness...
To find my strength again
My walls are closing in
(Traces of the rain pervade this to erase your hate
And take this from the fakeness...)

I've felt this way before;
So insecure...

Crawling in my skin
These wounds, they will not heal
Fear is powerful
Confusing what is real, oh...
